Stakeholders

In eProcurement System/ Organizational Set-up
Stakeholder identification

Stakeholders for e–procurement can include any person or functional area that "touches" the systems, tools or information being held. This may include people at all levels of the organisation and external contacts such as suppliers and outsourcing partners. An agency can have multiple procurement processes. It may be necessary to look across the entire agency for the appropriate stakeholders and to understand the different business rules as they apply to e–procurement.

The following list provides a general view of functional procurement areas and their potential e–procurement-related activities

Functional Procurement Areas and Their Activities
Accounts Payable	Maintins catalogues; Process POs; Process invoices
Audit	Ensure laws, rules, procedures & guidelines are being followed
Buyers	Initiate requisitions; Access catalogues; Approve POs; Receipt purchases; Process invoices; Approve payments
Executive	Sponsor Champions program; Develops policy; Secures funds and resources; Supports policy and procedural changes across functional areas
Finance	Manage, analyse and access data; Develop & implement policy and procurement processes
IT	Implement, integrate & manage online systems and tools; Develop business & IT strategy; Develop & implement policy
Legal	Write & negotiate contracts
Procurement	Manage, analyse and access data; Source suppliers; Manage categories & contracts; Manage suppliers; Develop & implement policy; Receipt purchases; Approve payments
Security	Develop & maintain security controls and requirements; Develop & implement policy
Suppliers	Respond to tenders; Participate in contract management; Maintain catalogues; Process POs; Submit invoices; Receive payment

Managing stakeholders

When managing suppliers, it is important to demonstrate the benefits of e–procurement as their engagement is critical to success. Communicate what e–procurement can and cannot do followed–up with regular progress reporting and quantifiable metrics. These messages, form part of a strong Communications Plan and will help to keep key stakeholders informed and manage their expectations.

Getting stakeholders to participate can be difficult, especially if they do not understand the value of the implementation to themselves and their functional area. A successful model includes a cross–functional team with members from each functional area (see list detailed in Stakeholder Identification). The team can support testing, development and training activities along with acting as product champions.

Here are some examples of how well–managed stakeholders at different levels in the organisation can positively impact an e–procurement implementation:

— Key stakeholders can spear head the change management activities by reviewing and updating local policy and procedures that will be impacted by the implementation
— The Executive Sponsor can ensure new policies and procedures are put into place to drive uptake of e-procurement
— End users prefer a fast and easy procurement process. Their roles and responsibilities often change as a result of e–procurement. Changes should be identified and communicated in a way that allows them to absorb the information and incorporate it into their work processes

Award of Contract

Acceptance of Non Disclosure Agreement

A non-disclosure agreement (NDA), also known as confidential disclosure agreement (CDA) or proprietary information agreement (PIA) is a legal contract between at least two parties that outlines confidential material, knowledge, or information that the parties wish to share with one another for certain purposes, but wish to restrict access to or by third parties.

It is a contract through which the parties agree not to disclose information covered by the agreement. An NDA creates a confidential relationship between the parties to protect any type of confidential and proprietary information or trade secrets. As such, an NDA protects non-public business information.

Procuring entities carrying our sensitive tenders and those with vital client information were using an offline mode to accomplish this.

A new configurable feature has been introduced in the GePNIC eProcurement system which facilitates the Tender Inviting Officials to carry out this process online. Tender Creator (Department User) needs to upload the NDA Document and Publish the Tender. While submitting the bid, Bidder needs to submit the updated NDA Document. Once the NDA Document would be accepted or Rejected by the Department user, system will display an acknowledgment message.

 If NDA Documents are Accepted, system displays a message "Your NDA Documents are Accepted. You can proceed to bid Submission". If NDA documents are pending or not approved or rejected by the Department user, system displays an acknowledgment related to the specific criteria. Bidder can proceed with the Bid Submission.

It is being used by organisation like Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), Engineers India Limited, Airports Authority of India, National High Speed Rail Corporation Limited etc.

Conclusion

It is a constant endeavour by Procurement Policy Division and National Informatics Centre to keep continuously improving the CPP portal. We get lot of encouragement from our users in the form of valuable feedback / suggestions / critical reviews / request for new features etc.

We try to live up to the expectations and have enhanced CPPP with many features.

We have been receiving new On boarding requests from at least 10 Organisations a month. This is a testimony to the wide spread use.

Stipulation in GFR 2017 that all tenders to be published in Central Public Procurement Portal is a major reiteration of the reach of the portal to all entities. As of now all tenders of the country get reflected in this portal. This has changed the way procurement is carried out in the country.

Multilateral Banks like World Bank and Asian Development Bank recommend the use of GePNIC system for procurement carried out in the projects funded by them.
